1 Swan submits this supplemental memorandum in support of its motion to 2 compel Defendants to serve Initial Disclosures. See Dkt. 129.

3 I. DEFENDANTS ARE IN VIOLATION OF THE COURT’S ORDERS
4 AND THE FEDERAL RULES.

5 Defendants are in violation of multiple court orders and the Federal Rules, 6 and do not provide meaningful justification for that violation. Defendants do not 7 (and cannot) dispute that the Court has twice ordered that discovery should proceed.
8 See Stip. at 19-25, 30-32; Ex. A (Jan. 7 Order); Ex. B (Civil Trial Order).<sup>1</sup> Indeed, 9 months ago, the Court ordered the Parties “to comply fully with the letter and spirit 10 of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(a).” Ex. A at 2. The Court then set a full 11 discovery schedule on February 18, see Ex. B, over objections from Defendants that 12 mirror those they raise in the Stipulation, see Ex. H (Rule 26(f) Report) at 25-27, 13 30-31. Under these Court orders and Federal Rule 26(a)(1)(C), Defendants were 14 required to serve initial disclosures on February 21. See Stip. at 4. They did not.

15 Instead, Defendants suggested they could withhold initial disclosures until 16 seven days after the Court rules on pending motions. Defendants misleadingly 17 suggest that because the motions will be heard on March 28 there is no delay. But 18 they have not offered to serve initial disclosures within seven days of the hearing—
19 they want to wait until seven days after any order, the timing of which the Parties 20 do not control, and there is a November 2025 discovery close. Plaintiff brought this 21 motion to stop the ongoing delays by Defendants in engaging discovery. See Ex.
22 B; Dkt. 142 (denying Individual Defendants’ ex parte application for a protective 23 order brought by Defendants on similar grounds as those raised here); Ex. 1 24 (transcript from UK suit) at 52:8-16 (stating the UK Court was not prepared to issue 25 an order restraining discovery in California). There is simply no basis to allow a 26

27 <sup>1</sup> As used herein, “Stip.” refers to the Parties’ Joint Stipulation Regarding Plaintiff’s 28 Motion to Compel. See Dkt. 129-1, “Exhibits” refer to exhibits attached to that stipulation, with the exception of Exhibit 1, which is appended to the concurrently-filed declaration of Ryan S. Landes. Internal citations and quotations are omitted unless otherwise noted,

1 party to refuse to serve initial disclosures because it asked the Court for a stay in the 2 Joint Rule 26(f) Report (which was denied) and intended to move for a stay again.

3 Defendants merely re-hash the same failed arguments already raised in the 4 Joint Rule 26(f) Report as to why discovery should not proceed, reciting procedural 5 history that is irrelevant here and claiming they will suffer “prejudice” if they are 6 forced to comply with the Court’s orders. See Stip. at 19-33. Defendants do not 7 cite any authority that their (misplaced) assertions of “prejudice” and the fact that 8 they requested a stay of discovery in the Joint Rule 26(f) Report (which was denied) 9 permit them to disobey Court orders and Federal Rules and unilaterally decide not 10 to serve initial disclosures. And Swan is aware of no such authority.

11 While Defendants appear to suggest that the one-page objections they 12 provided on February 21 (Exs. D, E) qualify as permissible “objections” under Rule 13 26(a)(1)(C), they cite no support for that suggestion. See Stip. at 19. That provision 14 allows parties to object to initial disclosures “in the proposed discovery plan.” Fed.
15 R. Civ. P. 26(a)(1)(C). Even assuming Defendants’ statements in the Rule 26(f) 16 Report qualify as such objection, the Court already ruled on those objections when 17 it set a case schedule that in no way relieved Defendants of their obligations under 18 Rule 26(a). See Stip. at 13; 8 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure 19 § 2053 Initial Disclosure (3d ed.) (courts typically rule on objections to initial 20 disclosures through the issuance of a scheduling order). That Defendants’ motions 21 to dismiss and compel arbitration were not pending when the Court issued its 22 scheduling order is irrelevant, and Defendants offer no authority otherwise. Stip. at 23 22. Defendants made clear in the Rule 26(f) Report that they intended to move to 24 dismiss and compel arbitration. The Court nonetheless set a discovery schedule.

25 II. THE INDIVIDUAL DEFENDANTS ARE NOT PREJUDICED BY 26 COMPLYING WITH THE COURT’S ORDERS.

27 The Individual Defendants try to recast arguments already raised and rejected 28 by the Court in terms of prejudice. See Stip. at 19-24. But prejudice is entirely

1 irrelevant to the Court’s analysis of a motion to compel discovery—of course any 2 production of documents could arguably cause prejudice, that is not the relevant
3 question—and does not render their violation of the Court’s orders “substantially 4 justified.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a). Regardless, the Individual Defendants fail to show 5 that serving initial disclosures will cause them prejudice. Stip. at 19-24.

6 First, the Individual Defendants seem to suggest prejudice because the scope 7 of discovery in arbitration may be more limited. But this Stipulation is about initial 8 disclosures. It cannot be the case—and the Individual Defendants do not argue—9 that they will not have to provide this information to Swan in arbitration. Moreover, 10 the Individual Defendants have admitted that Swan is entitled to seek temporary 11 relief in this Court, which is all Swan has sought. Dkt. 122-1 at 13. This claim is 12 properly before the Court and the Court has not stayed or otherwise limited 13 discovery—indeed, the Court has ordered that discovery begin—thus the Individual 14 Defendants must comply with their obligations under Rule 26(a)(1). Powell v UHG
15 I LLC, 2023 WL 5964931, at *2 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2023) (“Unlike a situation 16 where a motion to compel arbitration has been granted, the Court is unaware of any 17 statute which requires that discovery be stayed once a motion to compel arbitration 18 is filed, nor has the defendant cited to any such authority.”). The Individual 19 Defendants’ citation to cases where courts have granted motions to stay are thus 20 inapposite. Stip. at 20-22, 24.<sup>2</sup>

21 Second, the Individual Defendants falsely claim that they will be prejudiced 22 by “forced participation in Rule 26 disclosures” as it could constitute waiver of their 23 right to arbitration. Id. at 21. They cite no case law to support this contention, nor 24

25 <sup>2</sup> See Mahamedi IP Law, LLP v. Paradise & Li, LLP, 2017 WL 2727874, at *1
26 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 14, 2017) (granting a stay where defendant filed a motion to stay 27 pending the resolution of their motion to compel arbitration); Zamudio v. Aerotek,

v. Luxmax, U.S.A., 2017 WL 11566394, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 28, 2017) (same); Miles v. Tug, 2022 WL 16739566, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 7, 2022) (defendant had filed motion to stay pending appeal of denial of motion to compel arbitration); Winig
v. Cingular Wireless, 2006 WL 3201047, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 6, 2006) (same).

could they. See Quevedo v. Macy's, Inc., 709 F. Supp.2d 1122, 1131 (C.D. Cal. 2011) (doing the “minimum required to defend against [a] suit” will not amount to waiver of the right to arbitrate).<sup>3</sup>

III. PROTON’S IMPROPER REQUEST TO STAY DISCOVERY DOES NOT EXCUSE ITS VIOLATION OF COURT ORDERS.

Defendant Proton similarly is not excused from complying with its Rule 26(a)(1) obligations simply because it has moved to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction. To be clear, Proton has not moved for a stay on those grounds. To the extent Proton now requests such relief in opposition to Swan’s motion to compel initial disclosures, such request is not properly before this Court and Proton is not entitled to a stay based on arguments raised in opposition to a motion to compel. See Williams v. Experian Information Solutions Inc., 2024 WL 739676, at *2 (D. Az. Feb. 23, 2024) (“the appropriate way to resist discovery on [the basis of a pending motion to compel] is to seek a judicial stay order”). Defendant Proton’s cited cases do not say otherwise. Cooper v. Shoei Safety Helmet Corp., 2019 WL 6718085 at *1, 3 (D. Nev. Dec. 9, 2019) (defendant filed unopposed motion to stay); In re ZF-TRW Airbag Control Units Prods. Liab. Litig., 2022 WL 19236923, at *2 (C.D. Cal. Sept. 6, 2022) (defendants filed motion to stay); Spearman v. I Play, Inc., 2018 WL 1382349, at *1 (E.D. Cal. Mar. 19, 2018) (same).<sup>4</sup>

In any event, Proton’s request for a stay is meritless, and Proton’s cited case, AMC Fabrication, Inc. v. KRD Trucking West, Inc., demonstrates exactly why Swan’s motion should be granted. 2012 WL 4846152, at *1 (D. Nev. Oct. 10, <sup>3</sup> The only cases the Individual Defendants cite to support this argument involve parties that engaged in substantial discovery before moving to compel arbitration. Martin v. Yasuda, 829 F. 3d 1118, 1121-22 (9th Cir. 2016); Hill v. Xerox Bus. Servs, LLC, 59 F. 4th 457, 473-76 (9th Cir. 2023). Further, Swan offered that it would not argue that the Individual Defendants had waived their right to arbitrate by serving initial disclosures. See Ex. F at 2. Defendants still refused to serve them.

<sup>4</sup> The only case that Defendant Proton cites where a stay was granted without a pending motion to stay is Stussy, Inc. v. Shein, 2022 WL 17363898, at *7 (C. D. Cal. Sept. 23, 2022). However, notably in Stussy, no Rule 26(f) conference had been held, and the Court had not ordered that discovery against the defendants should proceed. That is not the case here. Id. at *6.

2012). There, the defendant objected to serving initial disclosures based on personal jurisdiction arguments in both the Rule 26(f) report and during the Rule 26(f) conference. Id. The court then expressed its intent to “enter a standard discovery order” but “requested that the parties brief the question of whether discovery should be stayed . . . pending resolution of [the] motion to dismiss.” Id. That is not what happened here. The Court here issued a standard discovery order without asking for briefing on staying discovery. Ex. B. Proton is thus not excused from its obligations under Rule 26(a)(1).

IV. THE COURT SHOULD SANCTION DEFENDANTS’ MISCONDUCT.

Defendants’ failure to serve initial disclosures was not harmless nor substantially justified, thus sanctions are warranted. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2); Russo v. Network Solutions, Inc., 2008 WL 114908, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 10, 2008) (“[Plaintiff’s] failure to provide initial disclosures cannot be deemed harmless. The importance of initial disclosures is manifest in Rule 26(a).”). Defendants have failed to comply with not only Rule 26(a)(1) but also two Court orders. Swan is prejudiced by their non-compliance. See Stip. at 15. The lone case upon which Defendants rely to argue otherwise is distinguishable, and involved a dispute around insufficient initial disclosures. R & R Sails Inc. v. Ins. Co. of Penn., 673 F.3d 1240, 1243 (9th Cir. 2012). That court felt that under those circumstances exclusion of evidence was too “harsh” a sanction. Id. Here, the Individual Defendants have entirely failed to produce any initial disclosures without justification and failed to serve any initial disclosures in violation of Court orders. Both monetary sanctions and evidence exclusion are warranted. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2); Russo, 2008 WL 114908, at *2.

Finally, Defendants cite no authority to support their argument that they are entitled to sanctions. See Stip. at 27, 33. Swan’s motion to compel initial disclosures was not “unnecessary,” for reasons explained throughout the Stipulation and this brief.
